Internal Controls Overview

Definition of Internal Controls

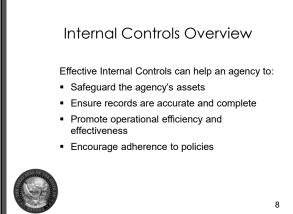

- Internal controls are the mechanisms, rules, and procedures implemented by a company (agency) to ensure the integrity of financial and accounting information, promote accountability, and prevent fraud. (Investopedia)
- Internal control is a process designed to provide reasonable assurance that specific entity objectives will be achieved. Internal control is affected by the actions of individuals within the organization as well as policies and procedures. (Government Finance Officers Association)

Internal Controls Overview

Internal Controls:

- Affect every aspect of an agency
- Are not stand-alone practices; they should be incorporated into day-to-day responsibilities
- Must make sense within each agency's unique operating environment
- Strong internal controls provide a level of assurance but do NOT guarantee an absence of error or fraud

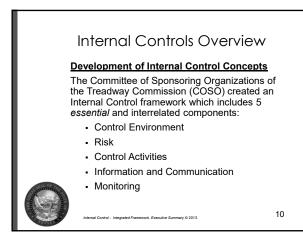

7

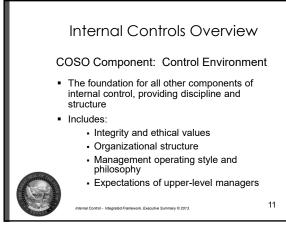

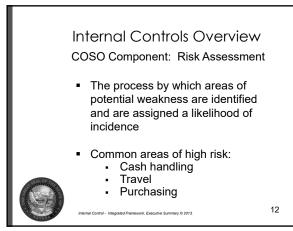

8

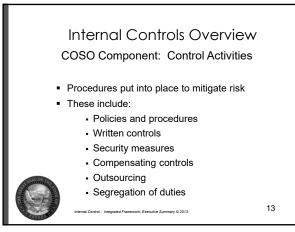

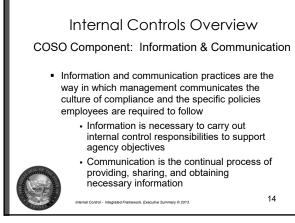

- Internal controls are the responsibility of all employees
- Internal controls only work with the cooperation of employees
- Not an automated process

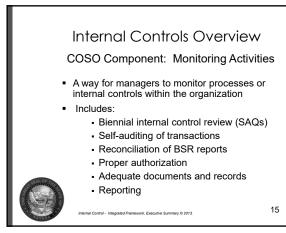

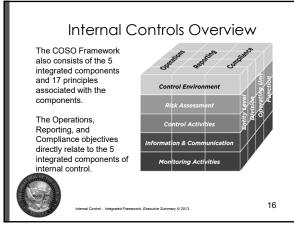

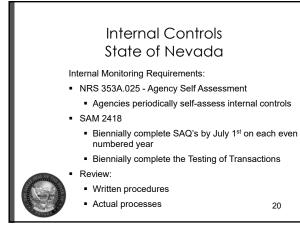

17

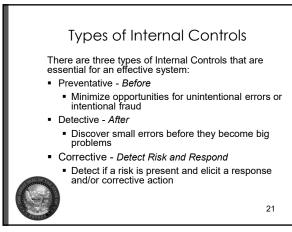

Internal Controls State of Nevada

- Pursuant to NRS 353A.020, agencies are required to develop written procedures to carry out the uniform system of internal accounting and administrative controls
- The uniform system of controls is documented through the Self-Assessment Questionnaire (SAQ) and can be found at:

Fraud Mitigation

High Profile Fraud Cases

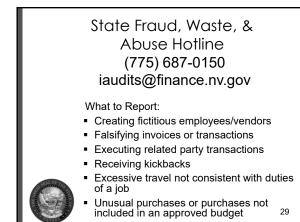

- Enron Hid financial losses on its financial statements by buying assets, such as power plants, and immediately claiming the future projected revenues from those power plants on its books even though $0 dollars had been made from electric sales.
 - When the company was forced to restate their earnings, it showed to have losses of $590 million and was $630 million in debt.
- WorldCom –Hid failing profits by overstating revenues and recording expenses as "investments" on their financial statements.

Fraud Mitigation

Resulted in...

 The Sarbanes-Oxley Act (2002) Developed to protect investors from fraudulent financial reporting from corporations. The act required broader disclosure requirements for publicly traded companies along with higher penalties for accounting fraud. Under the Act a company's CEO could be held personally liable for errors in accounting and financial reporting.
